Breathe Magazine

Breathe is a new literary magazine that aims to discuss mental health and wellness in medicine. This magazine highlights visual art, poetry, and prose poetry from medical students and residents across Canada. Given the ever-persistent stigma around mental health in medicine, we aim to create a publication that shines light on serious challenges that medical trainees across Canada face and advocate for improved mental well-being. First call for submissions is open until July 15th!

Resident Affairs

Residency and Fellowship training can be challenging.

Whether you're not feeling well emotionally, psychologically, or physically; If you've experienced or witnessed mistreatment; If you have accessibility or disability issues requiring accommodations

Residents Affairs is here to support you.

Reach out to pgaffairs@mcmaster.ca whenever you need an inclusive, private, and confidential place to go.
